Presenting North Scott High School's

CLASS of '92

IN these pages are the hopes and dreams, the heroes and characters, the family facts and special moments from the lives of nearly all 201 members of the Class of '92. We hope you enjoy reading these accounts now and for years to come.

This publication is the second in an annual series produced by the Journalism and Writing Lab I classes. The initial booklet was published by the North Scott Print Shop and distributed free in May of 1991.

In that booklet, titled "People at Work -- stories from North Scott High School," faculty, staff and administration were profiled. A few copies are available in Room D-12.

THIS YEAR'S publication is designed to be the first in a series of annual profiles of the senior class.

Language Arts instructors Denny Hennigan, Gene Conrad and Mike Kielkopf cooperated to direct the production of this booklet. About 100 students were involved in collecting the information from the seniors via a questionnaire and, in most cases, follow-up interviews were conducted as well. From all that information, the students wrote and edited the profiles of the members of the Class of '92 which appear here.

NOT ALL seniors elected to participate in this project and, therefore, not all are included.

We thank everyone who helped with this project, especially those seniors who took the time to complete the questionnaire and to be interviewed. We apologize to those seniors who wanted to be interviewed but were not. In those cases, the questionnaire provided the material for the profile.

THE STUDENTS who worked on this project also deserve special mention. Most did a fine job of gathering information, developing it into an interesting profile and editing it well.

Our thanks also goes to the homeroom teachers who helped distribute and collect the questionnaires.

As in all publications, we have done our best to eliminate typesetting errors and other mistakes. We apologize for any which were clever enough to evade our surveillance.

A SPECIAL THANKS goes to Mr. Hennigan, who translated most of the stories from the Apple II GS into the MacIntosh format to add to the professional look of this publication. He also did most of the coordination of the project and the vital record keeping.

Once again we thank the district's Print Shop for the expertise demonstrated in printing, collating and binding this publication in a timely manner.

HERE THEY ARE -- the profiles of the North Scott High School Class of '92.

In the category of wishes, Randy wishes he had five million dollars.

" If I had to do it all over again, I would go out for sports," the senior said.

Randy likes to race cars and someday would like to be running his own automotive repair shop, flying airplanes, and hopefully driving pro stock race cars at all of the nation events put on by the NHRA. TANYA SOENKSEN by Paul Sager, Journalism I

Tanya Soenksen was born on September 3 in the year nineteen hundred seventy-fourth year (A.D.) which in her native Vietnamese calendar was the Year of the Dragon. She attributes this for her erratic temperament and states emphatically that if it weren't for Valentine's Day, the word holiday would be completely null and void. On the weekends, Tanya enjoys counting the stars, hunting for water lilies, "the really big ones," and taking long steamy bubble baths with her imaginary bubble friend who, she says, "will be very upset upon learning that I have exposed our clandestine love affair. Let's just call him Count Bubble." Tanya also spends her invaluable time reading literature. "I often indulge myself in the likes of Julius Caesar, but most recently I've been captivated by a Hemingway novel: The Garden of Eden. It must be the most tragic and splendid book I've ever lain eyes upon. If I were a true daredevil, I'd call it divine."

On the home front, Tanya cherishes her corpulent feline (a fat cat) and her many perfumes. "I simply don't want to smell bad. You know - emit a repugnant odor... Ugh!" Tanya conceives her parents to be kind, generous, supportive and good Christian folks, and currently her mother is trying to convince her daughter that she's mislead into believing that she's blonde...

After graduation, Tanya hopes to study the moon and all its lunar majesty and mystery. She also aspires to be more creative and apply her unique abstract sequential personality to her compulsive musical desires. "If I could wish for anything, it would be to give power back to the voluptuous woman." She attests that mastering the art of seduction is synonymous to controlling the world. In ten years, Tanya imagines herself working when she wants to, making more money than you, and baking cookies for her husband Paul.

BETH BADER by Gerard Heidgerken, Journalism I

"I'm very interesting" jokes sports-addict Beth Bader. Most of her time is dedicated to sports of some sort, be it golf, basketball or volleyball. She is also active on the Yearbook staff.

Beth is one of North Park mall's best customers. When she's there she's usually buying clothes or music (she prefers R/B). She spends a lot of her time with her friends, either watching suspense movies, shopping or just goofing around.

Beth has always wanted to get into photography, but she was never quite able to. Part of this is due to problems with her "cheesy" camera. One of Beth's more unique experiences at North Scott was the time she spilled her lunch tray when sitting down to eat. She then returned after buying a new lunch and in a stroke of genius, promptly sat down in her yet to be cleaned up first lunch.

Beth sets high goals for herself. She will be attending Iowa State University on a golf scholarship and will major in criminal psychology. Eventually she'd like to be playing on the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) tour and perhaps coaching basketball or golf.

ASHLEY CROW by Gerard Heidgerken, Journalism I

"I'm a Donald Duck freak" says Ashley Crow, and she has the proof. She may have more Donald Duck doo-dads and memorabilia than anyone else in the Midwest. Aside from Donald, she also is a faithful collector of gadgets and a variety of toys.

Ashley has participated in FCA, the Foreign Language club, and basketball (she was named Most Valuable Player). She is vice-president of the student council and is a graduate of modeling school. She also spends a lot of time shopping, coaching basketball, and hanging around with her long-time boyfriend, Kirk.

Ashley remembers her freshman year when she was pushed into that all too familiar senior trash-can. This on its own was bad enough, but the senior who pushed her in then helped her out and asked her to Prom. She politely declined before storming off.

Ashley plans to go to college and major in psychology. She'd then like to get married and eventually open up her own psychology practice.

HEIDI LUNG by Gerard Heidgerken, Journalism I

"One everlasting party with all my friends and tons of Italian food and a few Italian men" is what Heidi Lung would like more than anything else. However, Heidi's interests go beyond Italians. When she's not busy admiring her hero, Mighty Mouse, she's probably busy with one of her many school activities, be it The Lance, Morning Star, Lancer Productions, or the art club. In the little time she has left you might find her at home making something. She doesn't care what, so long as she's making something new.

Although she enjoyed her years at North Scott and she has many great memories, she has had some low points also. She is not particularly proud of the time the old vending machine spit her money back at her and she went into a rage hurling a merciless string of profanities at it.

Heidi hopes for a future where she'll be well off, happy, busy creating, never alone and, of course, surrounded by Italian men.

TARA BELLMAN by Clint Maher, Journalism I

If you hear a squeaking in the halls or the classrooms of North Scott High School don't be frightened because it's not a mouse. It's probably just Tara Bellman laughing with some friends.

Tara, 18, has some odd pets. She has a horse named Duke, a dog named Cody, a cow named D.D., two steers named Gollath and Fozzy, a cat named Sophie, and five llamas.

Tara loves just about every type of animal, but perhaps her favorite is her horse. Tara rides in horse shows on the weekends and loves to ride the horses in her leisure time, as well.

Tara is in many activities during the school year including band and she is on the Lance staff. Going on Kansas City band trips have been her most memorable moments at North Scott.

One day Tara wishes to win a really big lottery and be an editor of an animal related magazine.

So if you hear a squeaking in the halls, it is probably Tara because I don't think llamas squeak, do they?

STEPHANIE GOODRICH by Jen Rock, Journalism I

The class of 1992 gathers for its 10 year class reunion. Stephanie Goodrich comes. She sees several familiar faces and catches up on 10 years worth of gossip with friends. She tells all about her life since high school. She went to college, now has a successful job, a husband and two kids.

All Stephanie's friends are amazed at how her life represents almost identically what she hoped for in the future while in high school.

As more news is shared many memories return. Stephanie mostly remembers going to all the track meets with other North Scott tracksters.

While Stephanie talks to Page Lillis they both laugh about their most embarrassing experience in high school which was when they were picked up by Eldridge police officer Brian Carstens for walking down the street.

Stephanie had been looking forward to this reunion for a long time because she wanted to talk to several people, but mostly Tiffany Olson. She hoped to have another personal talk like their memorable ones in study hall and thought maybe they could remember part of their "happy dance" which they enjoyed during high school.

As Stephanie walks around she becomes reacquainted with several people. She realizes that there are several things that she did not do during high school that she would have liked to. She will have to encourage her kids to pay attention and find out what classes they need to take before their senior year because she knows she will never have the opportunity to do it over herself.

As a fun activity at the reunion every ex-North Scott student is handed a copy of a questionnaire that they filled out when they were seniors. Stephanie remembers many of her favorites that were listed on her questionnaire: teacher, Mr. Flynn; holiday, Christmas; class, Fitness and Wellness; music, rock; food, junk; weekend activity, going out with Kirk and friends; radio station, 97X; TV show, "Beetlejuice"; movies, "Robin Hood" and "Batman"; celebrity, Kevin Costner.

All of this information brings back several recollections of fun times and friends during Stephanie's four-year stay at North Scott High School.

She leaves this reunion with a sense that she has really accomplished a lot in high school and after. She can hardly wait until the next reunion so she can see everyone again and relive more fond high school memories.

If Mike could go to any era he said," I would go to the future but any era would do." Mike wouldn't mind going to the future but he would rather stay here. One of Mike's most embarrassing moments was when he hit a deer on his bike in the park after cross country practice and having to tell his cross country coach about it

Mike's plans for after school are going to a four year college and later finding a job in aerospace engineering, buying a house, and getting married.
